INTRODUCTION

This volume includes the titles of the official publications of the commonwealth of Virginia from 1776 through 1916. An effort has been made to bring together the titles of the following groups.

1. Journals of the house of delegates and senate, original and reprint editions.

2. Documents inserted in the text of the house and senate journals.

3. Documents attached to the house and senate journals as appendixes.

4. Session laws.

5. Sketches and abstracts of the laws of single sessions.

6. Collections of laws in general, and codes.

7. Reports of courts.

8. Indexes and digests of court reports.

9. Official communications in the Virginia gazette, 1776 through 1789, including proclamations, letters, orders in council, notices, and petitions. Every issue of the Virginia gazette might be termed an official publication, for it was part of the public printer's contract with the commonwealth that he print a gazette in which the official communications should appear. The titles in this group must be accepted as a contribution, for it has not been possible to examine a complete file of the gazette.

10. Circular letters and proclamations of the governor, orders in council, and circular letters of any official, printed separately, in the period 1776 through 1820.

11. Acts of one session relating to a special subject, printed separately.

12. Collections of acts of several sessions, on special subjects.

13. Bills. A few bills in each session through 1846 were printed by special order of the senate or house. These printed bills were the most important of the session. In the early years of the commonwealth, important bills were ordered by a general assembly to be printed for distribution throughout the state previous to action on them in the following session. After 1846, titles of bills are not included in this bibliography. In the recent period when all bills were printed, few complete sets were preserved, and for some of the sessions, no bills at all are extant.

Whenever a set of these bills of any session has been found in any department of the commonwealth, a note of the location has been inserted in the proper place.

14. Petitions and memorials, to the general assembly, when printed separately, in pamphlet form. It was the custom, in the case of the more important subjects suggested for legislation, by means of petition, to print the petition in such form that the signatures of the petitioners could be written underneath, or on a separate sheet which could be easily attached to it. The titles of such printed petitions are not included here for the reason that they are very numerous, and although printed and circulated for purpose of obtaining signatures, they were not distributed. Such petitions can best be treated in a future calendar of all the petitions. Titles are printed in this bibliography of those in pamphlet form only.

15. Speeches before either house, when printed separately. These speeches, however, were not printed at the expense of the state.

16. Journals, debates and documents of the constitutional conventions.

17. Governor's messages when printed separately, and also when in the text of the senate and house journals.

18. Annual reports of each of the state officials, boards and institutions.

19. Joint resolutions before 1789, when printed separately, or in the gazettes. After 1789, such resolutions may be found included regularly in the volumes of session laws. Hening first prints joint resolutions with the session acts, in his reprint of laws of October, 1789, v. 13.

20. Session laws of the U. S. congress, and journals of the house of representatives and senate, ordered to be printed by the Virginia assembly for distribution in Virginia.

21. Journals, laws, reports, and all other documents of the Wheeling and Alexandria governments, 1861-1865.

22. Annual reports of all turnpike, railroad, and canal companies, published by the commonwealth.

23. Treatises and compilations, not authorized officially, which have for their subject, any feature of Virginia law.

24. Legal periodicals, published in Virginia, with tables of contents.

25. General and special orders and other publications of the first military district of the federal government, 1865-1870.

26. Reports of state banks to 1861.

27. Reports, periodicals and other publications of associations, societies and commissions aided in any way by state appropriation.

This volume does not contain the titles of publications in the following groups:

1. Maps. These titles were printed in a separate bulletin of the State Library, v. 7, nos. 2 and 3 (April, July, 1914).

2. Student publications of the state educational institutions, such as college annuals, magazines and newspapers.

3. Proclamations, official circulars, letters and instructions, printed in the newspapers after 1789. Titles of all such publications are preserved in the vouchers of the public printers, and of newspaper publishers outside of Richmond, who had official patronage. The large number of such titles made it undesirable to include them in this publication.

4. Records of cases in the court of appeals. The records were first authorized to be printed by an act of the session of 1841/42. 10 copies of each record were printed. The titles of all such records have been preserved in the vouchers of the printers. All printed records of cases before 1865 were burned in the destruction of the general court building in April, 1865. The collection of such records now in the office of the clerk of the court of appeals is complete from 1865 to date.

Before attempting such a compilation as the present, it was necessary to have in the State Library as large a collection of the state documents as it was possible at the present time to collect. Every effort has been put forth to fill up gaps in the collection. In the past ten years the number of Virginia documents in the library has increased twofold. In the present volume it is to be understood that the document to which a title refers is in the State Library, unless there is a note to the contrary. Whenever a document, not in the State Library, has been found in another library, a note to that effect has been inserted.

It would have been impossible to clear up the uncertainty about many items printed from 1776 to 1820, if the original vouchers of the public printers had not been found. These vouchers were among the manuscripts which the compiler of this volume removed from the auditor's storage rooms in 1913. In addition to the vouchers, all the available manuscript petitions of the public printers have been consulted.

The titles have been arranged by date. For those sessions of the general assembly extending from one year into another, the session year (e. g. 1810/11) has been used as a heading instead of the calendar year (1810). The reason for this practice is that by far the greater number of the documents have emanated from the general assembly. A document printed in 1811 at the request of the assembly of 1810/11, will be found listed under the year 1810/11. In adopting the chronological arrangement, the principle that governs the arrangement of archives in manuscript has been followed. There is no difference between archives in manuscript and archives in print, except that the accident of publication has put the latter in a more permanent and usable form.

No effort has been spared to make the index complete. Every personal or place name, and every subject of importance has been brought out.

At the suggestion of the compiler of this volume, Mr. William C. Torrence, when on the State Library staff in 1909, transcribed the titles of many of the journals, session acts, and documents printed as appendixes to the journals. This work was most conscientiously done, and has been drawn upon liberally in the preparation of the present volume. I wish here to acknowledge fully my debt to this beginning, by one who has always displayed keen bibliographical instinct.

In the prosecution of the work the help of libraries outside of Richmond was necessary, and it is gratifying to acknowledge the courtesy of the following: The Library of Congress, always willing to aid, has perhaps been of most service, both through the librarian, Mr. Herbert Putnam, and Mr. Gaillard Hunt, and Mr. John C. Fitzpatrick of the Manuscript Division; New York Public Library, H. M. Lydenberg, reference librarian; Department of Archives and history of West Virginia, Dr. Henry S. I am grateful also for the faithful interest and co-operation of the following assistants in the State Library: Miss Virginia Jones, Miss Ethel I. Nolin, Miss Elise Clark, Miss Elizabeth Hundley, Miss Dorothy Sage, and Mr. Francis H. Moore.

Titles and notes have been collected for parts 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 of this Bibliography. Part 3 will contain a selection of the most important titles of United States documents which relate to Virginia.

An asterisk prefixed to a title indicates that the document has not been printed at the expense of the State.

A copy of each document is in the Virginia State Library, unless otherwise stated in a note.

Independence. In convention. Present 112 members. Wednesday, May 15, 1776. Forasmuch as all the endeavors of the United Colonies, by the most decent representations and petitions to the king and Parliament of Great Britain, to restore peace and security to America under the British government, and a reunion with that people upon just and liberal terms, instead of a redress of grievances, have produced, from an imperious and vindictive administration, increased insult, oppression, and a vigorous attempt to affect our total destruction. [Resolution, that as there is no alternative to abject submission, that their representatives in congress propose that the United Colonies be declared free and independent states, providing that the forming and regulating of the internal affairs of each state be left to their legislatures; and that a committee ought to be appointed to prepare a declaration of rights, and plan of government for the colony] Edmund Pendleton, president. "The first part . . . contains all the important cases, upon the laws and constitution, decided in the first court of appeals, by the judges of the high court of chancery, general court, and court of admiralty; whose members were coeval with the revolution, and distinguished for their talents, and patriotism. This part embraces the period, between the commencement of the first court of appeals, [August, 1779] and its final dissolution in March 1789. The second part contains the unreported cases in the new court of appeals of five judges, from the dissolution of the first, [March, 1789] to the death of judge Pendleton in October 1803, with one or two cases in other courts. The work has been prepared with great labour and expense from the notes and memoranda of the judges and lawyers, who attended the courts, and a diligent examination of the records." No printed or manuscript copy of this journal is known. There is some doubt as to its having been printed. When Thomas W. White reprinted the journals of 1776-1790 in 1827 and 1828, he was unable to find a copy of this journal. The annual report of the committee on the condition of the clerk's office mentioned this journal as missing almost regularly from 1791 to 1821. The report for 1791 (see house journal, Nov. 15, 1791, p. 60) says that "the journals of 1782 are in the possession of Mr. Commissioner Davis at Philadelphia." Collection of Laws

A collection of all such public acts of the general assembly, and ordinances of the conventions of Virginia, passed since the year 1768, as are now in force; with a table of the principal matters. Published under inspection of the judges of the high court of chancery, by a resolution of general assembly, the 16th day of June, 1783. Richmond: Printed by Thomas Nicolson and William Prentis. 1785. 7461

235 p. 32 by 21 cm. The library has seven copies. Copy 1 has the signature of Charles Lee on the title page. Copies 3 to 7 were formerly in the state law library. Copy 4 has the signature of Will (?) Heth on the title-page. Copy 7 has the signature of W. W. Hening on the inside front cover.

See Hening, v. 11, p. 547, for a communication from the chancellors (Edmund Pendleton, George Wythe and John Blair) in regard to the revisal. This was generally called "The chancellors' revisal." According to Mr. G. W. Munford (Code of 1849, p. v.) this "was rather a collection of laws than a revisal of them."

The printing office of Nicolson and Prentis was burned Jan. 6, 1785. 15 sheets of this edition, and 1500 copies of each were destroyed. The printers were compensated by the house; see the journal Nov. 23, 1785. Their contract did not call for the inclusion of the laws of fall session of 1783, but by direction of the revisors, the laws of this session were added. The resolution directing the publication of this collection is in the house journal, May session, 1783, p. 53. See also in Petitions (ms.) the petition of Nicolson & Prentis relative to their loss by fire.

"This was a special session of the legislature, called immediately after the adjournment of the convention, which adopted the federal constitution. The laws were originally printed on a single sheet of paper, but they were soon so generally lost, that the acts of this session have been copied from the rolls." This note appears in the manuscript and also in Hening, v. 12, p. 644. It is evident that this manuscript is the copy used by Hening for p. 644-647, in v. 12. Copy formerly in the state law library. * Debates and other proceedings of the convention of Virginia, convened at Richmond, on Monday the second day of June, 1788, for the purpose of deliberating on the constitution recommended by the grand federal convention. To which is prefixed the federal constitution. Taken in short hand, by David Robertson . . . of Petersburg. Second edition. Richmond: Printed at the Enquirer press, for Ritchie and Worsley and Augustine Davis. 1805.

"The great and general eagerness to know their deliberations, induced the publication of these debates, which were taken down in short hand, as fully and accurately as an ineligible seat, and other disadvantageous circumstances permitted the stenographer to take them."

"Though they are much more detailed than such debates usually are, and though he was governed by the most sacred regard to strict justice and impartiality in taking and transcribing them, the peculiarity of his situation, must have rendered the publication imperfect, and perhaps in some (he hopes few) instances, have occasioned a misconception of the meaning of the speakers. Among other disadvantages, it was republished without the aid of a proof sheet. The transcriber had no opportunity of examining and correcting the sheet first committed to the press, so as to render all the other sheets accurate—a benefit which perhaps is common to every other publication in the English language. Yet the substance of those debates was so interesting, that the work met with general approbation; and a much greater number of volumes might have been easily sold, than were published.—The book is now in great demand, and not to be procured. A second edition has been for a long time loudly called for. In compliance with what is conceived to be the general desire, it is now published. In order to make it more acceptable, it has been in part revised and corrected by the same stenographer who took them down. He has excluded, it is believed, most of the errors in the first edition.—He has been aided in doing so, by reference to part of the stenographical manuscript which is preserved in his possession; part of it has been destroyed. This revision might perhaps have been perfect, could he have had some communication with the speakers on some points. As he could not communicate with all, he declined, for obvious reasons, to communicate with any." Preface, p. vii, viii.

"No such thing as a published speech was then known in the country, and the only means of forming an opinion of the powers of a public man was to hear him speak. Brief and imperfect as Robertson's Debates are, they present the fullest report of speeches then known in our annals." Grigsby. History of the Virginia federal convention of 1788. v. 1. p. 73, 74. Note.

"When the body assembled, David Robertson, of Petersburg, with an assistant, both shorthand reporters, appeared to take down the debates, a thing unprecedented in the history of Virginia assemblies. Instead of being allowed to place his table in front of the speaker, what he calls, 'an ineligible seat,' was all he could secure; and while some of the federal speakers revised his report of their speeches, the opposition, regarding him as in the interest of the federalists, refused to render him this assistance, thereby doing themselves the greatest injustice." Henry, W. W. Patrick Henry. v. 2, p. 345.

* The debates, resolutions, and other proceedings, in convention, on the adoption of the federal constitution, as recommended by the general convention at Philadelphia, on the 17th of September, 1787: with the yeas and nays on the decision of the main question. Collection of Laws Abridgment of the public permanent laws of Virginia. The repealing clauses in the several laws which have them, are reducible to a few forms, and are alike in general. To prevent the swelling of the book unnecessarily, and yet to give at the same time the operative words of every law, reference is made at the close of every law to the form of repeal as it is set forth verbatim in the appendix. Every act passed on or after October 19, 1792, is to be understood to contain the following clause of commencement: "this act shall commence in force from and after the passing thereof;" unless its commencement shall be particularly expressed to be on a different day, or in a different form. Those acts which passed before the 19th of October, 1792, and commence their operation on a different day from the day of their passing, will be specified. The date prefixed to each law is the day on which it passed. Richmond: Printed by Augustine Davis, M,DCC,XCVI. 7853 385p. 25 by 18½ cm.

Binder's title: "Randolph's abridgment." No record found that this was authorized by the state. See petition of Augustine Davis Dec. 24, 1798.

— *The awful crisis which has arrived must be felt by us all, however we may differ as to the causes which have produced it, or the measures which may avert its calamity. That our fellow citizens may be fully informed, of the part taken by their public functionaries, in all the measures touching this subject, it is deemed fair and proper, to submit the following resolutions offered in the house of delegates, by the member from Prince George, as a substitute for those adopted which are subjoined. Nor can it be deemed improper, to notice the prevailing distinction between the resolutions. In the latter, declarations of uniting in the common defence are mingled with insinuations of distrust in the government of the United States, the only political means by which efficacy can be given to resistance against an invading foe.

Having passed the resolutions, it would seem that the general assembly had finished their deliberations on the subject, but a novel course was pursued, alike outraging the rules of the legislature and derogating from the discernment of their constituents, by a laboured detail of the reasons which induced the legislative adoptions of the resolutions. It became necessary, therefore, to meet this second paper, by counter arguments, but this was done with reluctance, and after every attempt to arrest the proposition had failed. Our sharing in the impropriety of departure from usage must be attributed to the imperious necessity of the case.

The counter arguments are displayed in the following address submitted to the committee of the whole by the member from Westmoreland. An effort was made in the house, to obtain the circulation of the counter address, among the people, by subjoining it to a compilation of papers, in which is inserted the address adopted, directed to be published at the public expense; this request was denied, as will appear by reference to the journals.—To the liberality of individuals who have subscribed a sufficient fund for the purpose, is the minority indebted for the publication of their opinions on the very interesting subject, which has engaged the attention of the general assembly, and cannot fail to engage the fullest deliberation of their constituents, who alone can apply a radical remedy to the political disease. Code

The revised code of the laws of Virginia: being a collection of all such acts of the general assembly, of a public and permanent nature, as are now in force; with a general index. To which are prefixed, the constitution of the United States; the declaration of rights; and the constitution of Virginia. Published pursuant to an act of the general assembly, entitled "An act providing for the republication of the laws of this commonwealth," passed March 12, 1819. Richmond: Printed by Thomas Ritchie, printer to the commonwealth. [1819] 9135

"Minute and accurate references have been made, with much pains, to the original acts from which the particular provisions of the revised acts have been compiled; and references are also made, from the titles, to all former general laws relating to the same subjects; and, in both cases, the editions, or sessions acts, in which the original or former acts are to be found, are carefully cited. I have also added references, in the side margin, to the English statutes in pari materia. In regard to most of the important provisions of the laws, especially those affecting the rights of property, I have made an essay to give, in the notes, such a concise history of our statute law, from very early periods, often from the first institution of the colonial legislature, as may serve all general purposes, and assist more minute and particular investigations." p. iii, iv.

Acts concerning the publication of the laws; including the act concerning the public printer; and such of the acts concerning former editions of the laws, as are specially directed to be published in this code; to which is prefixed an account of the several editions of the laws of Virginia, now extant. Appendix 1. v. 2. 9136

Series of land laws . . . with a preface, containing references to the land laws, passed before the revision of 1705, and summaries of the several land laws passed at that revision, and thenceforth to the revolution: Appendix 2. v. 2. 9137

Series of laws concerning escheats and forfeitures, passed since the revolution: Appendix 3. v. 2. 9138

Series of laws concerning forfeitures of lands for taxes, passed since the revolution: Appendix 4. v. 2. 9139

Titles and dates of acts of a private nature, etc., passed since the session of 1812-13: Appendix 5. v. 2. 9140

The code of 1819 is as valuable to historical students as Hening's statutes. The footnotes are numerous and elaborate. On the subjects of many chapters the notes give an historical survey from 1619. There is a complete index of nearly 200 pages.

This code was authorized by an act passed Feb. 15, 1817. The following five men were named in the act as revisors: Spencer Roane, John Coalter, Robert White, William Brockenbrough, and Benjamin W. Leigh. These revisors reported to the general assembly on Dec. 2, 1817 (see Journal of the house, 1817-18, p. 9-10). By the act passed March 12, 1819 (see Acts of 1818-19, p. 62) the publication of the code was put in charge of Benjamin Watkins Leigh, who had as his assistants W. W. Hening, and William Munford. 9141

Cited as 21 Va. reports.

"Several of the cases reported were argued before the appointment of a reporter, which will be an excuse for there being no arguments published in some that are important: that of Taylor v. Bruce, was of such novelty and interest, and the law not being settled by the decision, that the reporter was at the trouble to obtain the notes of one of the judges, that the arguments as far as practicable might be exhibited: he regrets that even with that diligence, he has not been able to detail the authorities and reasoning of the appellee's counsel, or of Mr. Call, so fully as their ability, and the great moment of the question deserved." The judges selected the cases to be reported; and in every case wrote their own opinions at large. Of the arguments of counsel, just enough is inserted to embrace the law adduced on each case." "No idea can be formed of the ability, and much less of the eloquence of the respective counsel, from their arguments as now presented." Advertisement. p. [iii]-iv.

Collection of Laws

The statutes at large; being a collection of all the laws of Virginia, from the first session of the legislature, in the year 1619. Published pursuant to an act of the general assembly of Virginia, passed on the fifth day of February one thousand eight hundred and eight. v. 1. [1619-1660] [2d ed.] By William Waller Hening . . . New York, Printed for the editor, by R. & W. & G. Bartow, 1823. 9515

"By the act of the 5th day of February, 1808, authorizing the editor to publish the statutes at large, and prescribing the mode of authentication, one hundred and fifty copies were subscribed for on behalf of the commonwealth; which added to two hundred copies printed for the use of the editor's subscribers, made the impression three hundred and fifty copies only. Under this subscription, the work progressed to the end of the 4th volume, when the interruptions produced by the late war, and the death of the publisher, Mr. Samuel Pleasants, junr., occasioned its suspension. When the committee on the revised code of 1819, reported to the legislature, they so strongly recommended the continuation of the statutes at large, that the act of the 10th of March, 1819, was passed. By this act, the subscription, on behalf of the state, was increased to eight hundred copies; but no provision was made for completing the sets with the first four volumes. The first volume having been long out of print, and the state having a large surplus of the 5th and subsequent volumes, the act of the 24th of January, 1823, was passed, which provides for completing the sets, and appropriates the proceeds of the sales of 500 copies, under the superintendence of the executive, to the purchase of a public library. Preface to second ed.: p. xxiii.

Appendix, page 905-919, contains:

1. Substance of Governor Giles's Address to the executive committee, Oct. 17, 1829; 2. Mr. Giles's Speech on the executive council, delivered in the convention on Nov. 28th, 1829; 3. A brief sketch of Mr. Giles's Remarks on the judiciary, Dec. 29.

"The present volume comprises the Proceedings and debates of this important convention. It is as complete a history of them, as can be obtained; not a resolution, nor projet, nor note, which has been designedly overlooked; scarcely a debate, which is not attempted to be sketched. The publishers, fully aware of the deep interest which these proceedings would excite, not only at the moment of action, but for all future time, were anxious to rescue them, as far as possible, from oblivion; and they accordingly looked around for the best reporter that could be obtained. The skill of Mr. Stansbury, of Washington, in reporting the proceedings of Congress, is well known to the citizens of the United States; and the publishers deem themselves fortunate in having obtained his services, as a reporter for the convention. The public may be assured, that they have spared no pains in making their volume as perfect as possible. Many of the speeches have since been revised by the members, and many of the debates are now published for the first time. Yet the publishers cannot be insensible to the imperfections of the work. No stenographer can take down every thing accurately. No efforts of our own could supply what was defective. Some of the orators had neither the time, nor the inclination, nor even the means, of enlarging the sketches of the stenographer; and we feel it due to some of them, frankly to confess, that we are far from having done justice to some of their speeches. It is not easy to report the speeches of such orators as Randolph, and Leigh, and Giles; and if these, or any other gentleman, should think fit to complain, that their arguments have been omitted, or misrepresented, we can only assure them, and the public, that we have done the best within our power." Preface, p. iv.

"Note. This list, and all the delinquent lists which shall be prepared and published pursuant to the act of the last general assembly, (especially the lists for the western counties,) will be forwarded to every county in the commonwealth. There are persons residing in various parts of the state who are interested in delinquent lands lying in other sections, and particularly in western Virginia, and this note is intended to explain what seems not to have been understood by some of the eastern clerks of courts to whom lists of the western counties have been heretofore forwarded. All the lists will, in like manner, be transmitted for circulation in other states, and will be directed to the principal reading rooms and other known public places of resort in various cities of the Union. The editors of newspapers to whom they may be addressed, may probably confer a benefit upon some of their patrons, by announcing that they are sent to their respective printing offices for public inspection. This favor is particularly asked of those editors who publish the act under which the lists are prepared.

In this and all delinquent lists, it is proper to observe that the 10 per cent. damages per annum, on the amount of the tax, is not included. Many of the tracts are also delinquent for years subsequently to 1820. The lands so in arrear will thereafter be published in separate lists, further time being allowed for the payment of arrearages accruing after 1820."

The title as given above is the title of the list of each county.

The library has the lists for the following counties: Albemarle, Amherst, Augusta, Bath, Bedford, Berkeley, Botetourt, Campbell, Culpeper, Fauquier, Franklin, Frederick, Halifax, Hardy, Harrison, Henrico, Henry, Jefferson, Kanawha, Loudoun, Louisa, Madison, Mecklenburg, Monongalia, Montgomery, Morgan, Nelson, Orange, Patrick, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Shenandoah, Tazewell, Wythe.

The lists vary in length from 1 to 110 pages quarto.

Also lists of lands sold in Bedford, Botetourt, Henrico, Louisa, Orange, Rockbridge, Shenandoah, in 1816 for arrears of taxes, and afterwards redeemed by the executive, and now redeemable by the original owner at any time before Jan. 1, 1832. The list for each county is printed immediately after the list of delinquent lands for each county.

[Object of that part of law establishing literary fund which relates to primary schools not accomplished. Benefit derived from expenditure of the $45,000 annual appropriation for education of indigent children not commensurate therewith. Failure due to various causes; "the insufficiency of compensation (4 cents per diem of actual attendance) now allowed by law is proven, beyond all controversy, by the fact that many of the most competent teachers will not take the poor children: the consequence of which is, that although there is a large number of proper subjects in our county for the judicious expenditure of our quota, we cannot disburse it, and under the provisions of the existing law we have been unable to claim our quota, for one or two years, during a period of six years past." Wish amendment of law so that adequate compensation may be given teachers, thereby ensuring services of the best qualified persons for this work. Hope also for the suggestion from legislature of valuable improvements in primary school system. Perceiving that usefulness of institution would be impaired if stock specie were not replenished application made in October 1838 to treasurer of the state for payment of state's subscription on 1,038 shares of stock, but failing therein for want of "funds in the treasury applicable to the payment," a partial suspension of specie payment was made on October 16, 1838 as a protection to depositors and dealers with the bank. Present state of bank. If such protection were given this institution as exists in Georgia against demands of brokers, etc., no embarrassment could ever occur in business operations, and this bank could immediately resume specie payments. Literary fund. [Memorial of the president and board of directors to the general assembly. Martin Dawson of Albemarle, deceased, by his will liberated his negroes, made special legacies to his relatives and devised the remainder of his estate, real and personal, to establish three schools, in failure whereof the aforesaid residue to go to literary fund, 2/3 of interest therefrom to be used by school commissioners of Albemarle in same manner that portion of literary fund allotted that county is disposed, and 1/3 to school commissioners of Nelson with same condition imposed; from time to time the principal to be used for the like benefit of the said counties in like proportions as interest, as the legislature may think advisable. In a suit instituted by Dawson's heirs to annul the devise for educational purposes and have the estate divided among them instituted in circuit superior court of law and chancery for Albemarle, in which the president and directors of the literary fund were made defendants, the devise to the literary fund was declared null and void, and the heirs entitled to the estate. On an appeal by the defendants to court of appeals, the decision of the judge of the aforesaid court was reversed and a decision rendered by the latter body "that the estate was given by will to the executors in trust for the purpose of procuring an act of assembly with the necessary provisions for constituting the funds devised a part of the literary fund in strict conformity with the terms, provisions and conditions of the will." Opinion of the court that executors of Dawson's will should apply for law to carry bequest into effect, but that a law passed without such application would be valid— The president and directors of the literary fund apply for act authorizing them to receive and hold the property devised by said Dawson for special uses of school commissioners as aforesaid, and to pay from same expenses incurred by legal proceedings in this matter, and further to enable them at all times in future to receive such bequests as are made them for purposes of local education. Public meeting of citizens of Richmond. [Resolutions adopted state that the people of Virginia have always given evidence of their respect for the laws and institutions of others and have absolute right of property in their slaves. People of Virginia will never submit this right of property to any other people or nation, and they regard legislation of some states as hostile to their institutions, especially an act of New York, of May 6, 1840, trial by jury, which is a violation of the U. S. constitution. It is recommended that the Virginia legislature revise the laws so as to better secure slave property. They protest against attempts of congress to interfere with slave property in states, territories and District of Columbia. Flag of United States should protect persons and property under it, and policy of British government in the Creole case calls for redress, and it is expected that U. S. government will vindicate national honor, and that Virginia assembly will adopt appropriate resolutions appealing to government] Doc. no. 73. 11816

Register of the debates and proceedings of the Va. reform convention. Wm. G. Bishop, official reporter. Ro. H. Gallaher, publisher. Richmond republican extra.—January, 1851. n. t. p. 8vo. 504p. (and Speeches on basis question. pp. 19, 8, 12, 34, 8) Jan. 6-March 7, 1851.) 13552

No copy in the Virginia state library. There is a copy in the Mass. state library. This was kindly sent to the Virginia state library for examination. The volume covers the debates from Jan. 6 through March 7, with some pages, 376-457, and 481-496 wanting.

There is also a copy in the private library of the Hon. H. T. Wickham. The Debates were published as supplements to each of the Richmond newspapers, but in no copy of a Richmond paper of this time in the Va. state library does the supplement appear. The file of the Enquirer in the library of congress contains the following supplements: Proceedings of Jan. 8 to Jan. 14, 27 to 29, 31 to Feb. 7, 1851. Beginning with the supplement containing the proceedings of Feb. 8, each supplement is numbered consecutively, beginning no. 9. Of these the Library of Congress has numbers 9, 10, 11, 12, 22, 24 to 30, 32, 33, 35, 37, 38, 40 to 48, 51, 53, 54, and 55. The supplement "55" ends with the proceedings of May 29, 1851. It appears, therefore, that a more nearly complete report of the Debates of this convention is in the library of congress than else where. In the library of the late William L. Royall there was a large collection of the supplements containing the Debates. It has not been possible to make a list of these however.

The titles of the two following documents may be of interest in this connection:

Report of the special committee appointed to enquire into the progress made in publishing the Register of debates of convention. 1852-3. Doc. no. 75. Documents of house, 1852-53.

This report explains fully the difficulties in the publication of the Register. It is apparent from this that the Debates were published in full as supplements to the regular issues of the Richmond Whig, Enquirer, Examiner, Times, Republican advocate, and Republican, though in none of the copies of these papers in the Virginia state library do the supplementary pages appear. It was contemplated to publish the speeches at a sufficient interval, after the publication of the same matter in the newspapers as supplements to afford an opportunity for correction. The members were slow in sending in their manuscript speeches, and the type set for the supplement to the newspapers had to be distributed. It is inferred that the type already set for the January and February sessions, could be used at once, without much change, and this probably accounts for the published volume of the Register covering those months, but no others. The total amount paid Mr. Gallaher up to Jan. 17, 1852 was $34,013.64.

Communication from Robert H. Gallaher, relative to printing Proceedings and Debates of the Virginia state convention, 1852. 6p. (Doc. no. 26. Documents, house of delegates, 1852-53.)

"On the 20th day of January, 1851, I was appointed publisher of the Proceedings and Debates of the Virginia state convention, then in session for the revision of the constitution; and in pursuance thereof, entered into a contract with the secretary of the body for printing and distributing the same in the form of a Supplement to the several daily papers of Richmond, at a stipulated price. I was also engaged to print in book form, a Register of the Debates and proceedings of the convention, and that honorable body directed the distribution of 600 copies of the work to its members, and to officers of the government."

"On the 31st of July, 1851, the day before adjournment, the following resolutions were adopted by the convention:

1. Resolved, That the publisher of the convention, under the superintendence of the secretary of the convention, be authorized to compile from the journal and from the city papers published at the time, a condensed history of the short session of this body, held in the months of October and November last; said history to form part of the Register of debates already ordered for the use of members, and for distribution to the several states, and of public officers, according to the late act of assembly.

2. Resolved, That the secretary of the convention be authorized to certify, for payment, the accounts of Ro. H. Gallaher for the publication of the said Register of debates.

"Under the authority aforesaid and under the obligations of my contract, I proceeded with the printing of the Supplement, and finished it—and have since printed 50 forms of the Register, the greater portion of one large octavo volume. The whole will probably constitute three to four volumes of 1,000 pages each."

"The delay in completing the work has been occasioned by two causes, both of which will no doubt be deemed sufficient by your honorable body: the first is, the unavoidable delay on the part of many members in revising and correcting their speeches, (some of them not yet having done so;) the second, that the auditor deemed it his duty to decline further payment, for the want of what he considered sufficient authority."

"Having executed printing on the first volume of the Register to the amount of more than two thousand dollars, which is still unpaid, I respectfully submit to your honorable body the propriety of early action upon the subject, and such provision as will enable me, through my trustee, to complete the work according to contract."

The following letter is also of interest (secretary of commonwealth's letter book, 1858 to 1860, p. 215):

Executive Department,
Richmond, June 19th, 1858.

Dear Sir,

Having had from time to time, frequent applications for a copy of the Register of Debates of the Convention of 1850-51 in the public library, and not being able until lately to find out what had become of that portion of the edition which had been printed, or whether the edition had ever been completed, or could be finished with the material with which you were furnished, I write to ascertain if possible, the facts from you. I have ascertained that the printed matter for the Register & Supplement is in the possession of Messrs. Colaton & Co. & Mr. Alfred Williams in this City & that they hold them subject to a lien for storage and also for a debt due to Mr. Williams by you for about $350. And that these two amounts would perhaps be about the amount due you for the forms printed over and above those already paid for. I have asked the opinion of the Attorney General as to the interest & rights of the Commonwealth over the materials in consideration of the sum already paid by her. He gives it as his opinion that "The State is unquestionably entitled to so much as she has paid for. I do not doubt that Mr. Gallaher would order so much to be handed over under his contract." The Attorney General further says "Perhaps Mr. Gallaher would agree, upon the State's paying Mr. Williams' debt, & the bill for storage, to hand over the whole edition as far as printed. Mr. Williams could not object to this. I think Mr. Gallaher would be bound to do so. He is also bound to deliver up the written materials in his hands, with which the Legislature might hereafter print the remainder of the Register of Debates."

Will you be so good as to give me any information in your power relative to the subject, with your views & wishes. Perhaps some arrangement may be made by which all parties may be satisfied. It is a pity that the materials should remain in the condition in which I hear they are, being used as wrappers, and in a state of utter confusion, and utterly valueless to any one. An early attention to this letter will be desirable.

Very respectfully, &c.

George W. Munford,
Secy. of the Comth.

"With the present volume commences the report of the decisions of the supreme court of appeals organized under the constitution of 1851. In this court is now vested the supreme appellate jurisdiction in both civil and criminal causes. By the thirteenth section of the sixth article of the constitution it is provided, that "When a judgment or decree is reversed or affirmed by the supreme court of appeals, the reasons therefor shall be stated in writing, and preserved with the record of the case." This provision has necessarily introduced a considerable change in the mode of expressing the decision of the court. For some years past, with special exceptions, the court has been content simply to express in its judgment or decree the grounds on which its decision was made, without giving the reason for it. Under the present provision of the constitution, the judges have deemed it their duty to set out fully the reasons on which their opinions are founded. A consequence of this change and the number of cases directed to be reported, have rendered it impossible to give the arguments of counsel, and bring the reports for the year within the compass of one volume, which is all that by the statute is authorized to be published in one year. Indeed, this volume does not contain the decisions for one year, but terminates with the 1st of April 1853; that being the regular time for commencing and concluding the volume. The reporter has deemed it improper to make a second statement of the case, when, as is frequently done, the judge delivering the opinion of the court, or delivering an opinion in which the other judges concur, has made a full statement of the facts in his opinion. Attention is called to the errata, referring to page 220." Preface. p. [iii]

CONVENTION AND CONSTITUTION OF 1861

[Debates of the convention of 1861] 14759

The Debates in full begin in the issue of the Enquirer of Feb. 14, 1861, and continue daily. The Debates were never published as a whole in book form. The Virginia state library has the issues of the Enquirer through March 16, 1861. The confederate memorial museum has a file of the Enquirer for 1861 containing many issues that are not in the Virginia state library; its file is more nearly complete than that in any other library of which we have information. The Enquirer is indispensable for the student of the convention of 1861. The proprietors of the Enquirer had contracted with the convention to report the Debates. See convention journal of April 24, 1861. p. 191. The Debates appear also in the Daily and Semi-weekly examiner; the file of the Daily examiner for 1861 in the Virginia state library begins with April 5, and continues with a few numbers missing through Dec. 31; the file of the Semi weekly examiner is complete from March 8 to Dec. 31, 1861. Sketches of the Debates appear in the Dispatch, the file of which for 1861 in the Virginia state library is almost complete.

Journals

- [Journal of the house of delegates of the commonwealth of Virginia at a session begun Dec. 7, 1864] 15268

There is no complete manuscript or printed copy of this journal known to be extant. The session continued until March 15, 1865. It is likely that the copy of this journal, having been sent to the public printer, in manuscript form, was burned at the time of the evacuation. The best substitute is the account of the proceedings published in each of the papers during the session. There is in the Boston athenaeum a volume with the following title: "Journal of the house of delegates of the state of Virginia for the called session of 1864. Richmond: William F. Ritchie, public printer. 1864." This volume has 96 pages. This is, of course, only a part of the journal of the session; this is the only known copy.

[Journal of the senate of the commonwealth of Virginia at a session begun Dec. 7, 1864] 15269

See note under journal of the house. No manuscript or printed copy of this journal known to be extant.

* [Acts of the general assembly of the state of Virginia passed at a session which met on Dec. 7, 1864] 15270

No printed or manuscript copy known to be extant. See note under house journal. This is the only session of the general assembly, from 1776 to 1916, of which there is no file of enrolled bills in the vault of the keeper of the rolls of the house of delegates.

There being no complete journals of the house or senate and no laws of this session, the only information we have of the business transacted, aside from the accounts in the daily papers, is from the voucher of James E. Goode, senate printer, and from the surviving "documents" which were printed separately. The voucher or itemized bill of Mr. Goode is for the period of Dec. 7, 1864 to March 7, 1865, and includes principally the titles of senate bills and senate documents. The close of this session being so near to the time of the capture of the city of Richmond, it is not likely that the separately printed house and senate documents were ever bound up in volumes, as in preceding sessions. I have not been able to discover the voucher or any other record giving the titles of publications ordered by the house. There is a considerable number of house and senate documents in the library of the Boston athenaeum, the largest collection of printed papers of this session of which I know. Our information of the publications of the session being so meagre, the voucher of James E. Goode is herewith printed in full, followed by the titles of documents now in possession of the Boston athenaeum.

The corrected edition of the preceding.

The debates and proceedings of the constitutional convention of the state of Virginia, assembled in the city of Richmond, Tuesday, December 3, 1867: being a full and complete report of the debates and proceedings of the convention, together with the reconstruction acts of congress, and those supplementary thereto, the order of the commander of the first military district assembling the convention, and the new constitution. Official: W. H.
Samuel, phonographic reporter. Richmond, Printed at the office of the New Nation, 1868. v. 1. 15592

749 p. 23cm. No more published:

"The debates are utterly worthless—they are a fraud; because the jargon of the negroes is rendered into tolerable language and will appear as the declamation of passably well informed orators." Dispatch. April 25, 1868.

The debates are somewhat fuller in the Dispatch and Enquirer than in the Whig. The jargon used by the negroes in debate has not been altered in the Dispatch and Enquirer, as in the published volume of Debates.

Wm. H. Samuel was paid $3,050.00 for the "phonographic" report of debates and proceedings of the convention from Feb. 15, 1868 to April 6, 1868.
1525 pages, manuscript. The printed debates extend only through Jan. 29, 1868.
No manuscript report of the debates after Jan. 29 is now known. There was some effort to print the debates after Jan. 29, 1868, but the house in the session of 1870/71 decided adversely. See House Journal, 1870/71, p. 115.
